Mr. Goebel's "flat demand" to Capt. Stone's charge of treachery will have to be repeated and without any leading. If he would have the people believe him at all. The captain has not only refuted his statement but has put it in most pointed language, making the repetition almost enough to take in those who have lent their version of the treachery to that of Mr. Goebel. Capt. Stone's prompt answer to Mr. Goebel's statement and the tone of the reply has raised him greatly in the estimation of the people who had about concluded he had fallen a victim to treachery and deserved just what he got for his thoughtlessness. That his firmness and manhood in the matter are to a great extent redounding him among the people, and hence the delight with which old friends have read his last terse and emphatic reply. The question now is, will Mr. Goebel be as long replying this time as he was in formulating his statement.

The Cincinnati Enquirer, which has all along been an advocate of Goebel for governor, has advised the Louisville Courier-Journal in its efforts to make the L. & N. railroad an issue in the state canvass. The Enquirer shows its cloven foot in this by making an attack on Throckmorton, the Republican nominee for commissioner of agriculture, whom it holds up as an old L. & N. railroad conductor and therefore, it says, the candidate of this company on the ticket. The Democratic railroad employees won't appreciate this effort of their party to bring their business and livelihood into dispute, while all thoughtful citizens, those who know the value of such enterprises to the prosperity of themselves and the state, will be just as certain to rebuke a clan so determined to ruin or ruin that they may get next to the state's strong box. The Democrats seem to have been pressed for an issue when they had to adopt such a compromise as this of driving the L. & N. railroad out of the state, as Goebel has boasted he will do and as the party leaders are threatening to do to please the masses.

In the wake of all wars follows Christianity. History verifies this statement; the growth and moral improvement of every land justifies it. Then why not expand? Why disapprove of the progress certain to ensue in any Christianized country? Only the political free-lover questions the morality of the expansion idea, for his latter nature can forgive it strong endorsement.

The Louisville Post truthfully says that the corrupt editors attribute corruption to those with whom they are unable to cope in a discussion, the drunken editors accuse their opponents of drunkenness as their only argument, and the crazy editor say the other fellow is in the lunatic, though the respectable, thoughtful and sensible people know who are right and who are wrong. The Post, by the by, is saying many unusually wise things just at present and it would profit the hide-bound Democrats and party critics of things not to their thinking to read it very frequently if not steadily. They would be benefited no doubt in many ways.

The Democratic papers have been prompt to print Mr. Goebel's reply to Captain Stone's charge of treachery, yet few if any of them dared to print the charge. They were also prompt to criticize the letter of Judge Tarkenton, yet none of them will print the Judge's letter. These papers may think their efforts to keep such articles from their readers will leave them in entire ignorance of their contents, but the idea is a foolish one. The appetites of their readers are only whetted by their pomposity for the other side and they are honest enough with themselves to claim it, and they do so by purchasing and reading the more independent and enterprising class of papers, which are quite plentiful thanks to the free-lance class in politics and the thoughtful newspaper publishers. The day has long since passed when the editor can do the thinking for his corner of readers.

The Democratic papers of the state are trying to draw Mr. Bradley into the canvass by making it appear that he was misdirected at Lexington. The effort no doubt causes the governor to smile, for he, as well as the entire state, knows he is in no more of an embarrassing position than the hands of the candidate and did not have to be pressed to engineer it through either. They, the Democratic press, are endeavoring to make the people think, he is filled with many more toward some of the class as was Lammie of old. A charge of treachery, if made direct by any one, would draw from Mr. Bradley even sharper words than that his address is such and such a postoffice, town, county, street number, state, etc.

TO THE POINT.

Mayfield Mirror: "Democrats are in a disagreeable plight. Before the convention was held the party caucus would not let them discuss the merits and demerits of the candidates, for fear a discussion would give the Republicans campaign material to use against the nominees and now the caucus says no one but a bolter and genuine disorganizer would criticize the nominee and hesitate to accept him."

THE STATUS.

The Lexington Herald, which is one Democratic paper independent and just enough to review its own party affairs in a proper way, publishes Mr. Goebel's reply to Captain Stone's charge of treachery, just as it published the charge, and in its comments makes some very pointed references and puts the status of the controversy in the proper light before the people of the state. Here is what the Herald says:

"The question of veracity between Captain Stone and Mr. Goebel is a personal matter in part, but it is far more than a mere question of veracity between the two contestants for nomination."

"And it may be that in the end it will not remain a question of veracity between these gentlemen alone. Mr. Stone charges that Mr. Goebel, not Mr. Woodson, brought him a message from Mr. Goebel and carried in answer and returned with a reply. It may be that Mr. Goebel is able to give much assistance in enabling just and impartial men in reaching a fair conclusion."

Mr. Owens has published that while he and Captain Stone were talking together, Mr. Goebel sent for Captain Stone, and after a colloquy between them, Captain Stone returned and immediately made a statement that Mr. Goebel would secure for him the nomination upon certain terms. The Louisville Times on that fated afternoon published that Mr. Goebel would withdraw and nominate Captain Stone that night. Captain Stone has given a circumstantial statement of the substance of that colloquy.

Goebel will also, hereafter, give his version of what was said at that time and place. Other persons no doubt, have valuable information concerning this matter, and all will finally give their evidence; for no honorable gentleman can remain silent in justice to him—wherever one it is—who is in the right.

"And when all this testimony is before the state, the judgment of an impartial public opinion will be rendered."

OUR TICKET.

The Louisville Commercial says of the Republican ticket:

"In personal character and in political strength the Republican state ticket nominated at Lexington is the peer of any that has ever sought the suffrage of the people of this state. From top to bottom it is a ticket amply qualified for the performance of the executive and administrative duties that will devolve upon it next January, and it will be recognized through out Kentucky as a ticket of tremendous strength at the polls."

"Heated by the gallant Taylor, the first law officer the state has had for years who understood and performed the real duties of his office, and buttressed by the names of such stalwarts of character and influence as are associated with him in Republican leadership this year, the ticket is truly noble. After Taylor there is John Marshall, the ablest man in the very front rank of the Louisville bar. Then Caleb Powers, a vigorous young Republican of the Eleventh congressional district, who commanded the undivided support of the counties all about him and who finally won his nomination amid a remarkable demonstration of his power. Then Judge Clifton J. Pratt, who lives in Hopkins county but whose state knowledge is a book and honors for the qualities that have made him one of the most distinguished Kentuckians of our time. Then John S. Sweeney, one of the greatest preachers of a church whose membership reaches into every county in Kentucky and wields a noble power wherever it sets up its altars. Then Walter R. Day, the splendid young Republican leader of Breathitt county whose year and just such constitutional requirements, but the vigor of whose manhood nobly questions who knows him. Then John Burke and J. W. Throckmorton—chosen for their special qualifications for the offices of superintendent of public instruction and commissioner of agriculture."

"The ticket is invincible. It represents advanced political purposes. It commands the instant respect of the whole state. It cannot be shamed by Democratic malignance or belittled by partisan rivalry. It is a ticket that will be selected in November and that shall not be cheated of victory in January."

EXECUTOR'S SALE

WOF THEM

Thornberry-McNary Mansion

On the 16th Day of August, 1899, at 10 o'clock a. m.

At the Mansion on North Seventh st., Paducah, Ky.

We will offer for sale the residence of the late Mrs. Ann Tee McNary and the two lots on which it stands at public outcry, to the highest and best bidder, on the following

TERMS:

One-third cash, and the remainder, one-third in twelve, one-third in eighteen, and one-third in twenty-four months. Deferred payments to bear interest at 6 per cent per annum and he secured with good and approved security and a lien retained on property, or whole amount may be paid cash if purchaser so desires.

DESCRIPTION:

This house has twelve rooms, including latest improved style bath-room with hot and cold water, and is lighted by both gas and electricity. The entire premises have best planing throughout, and city sewerage connections for draining both bath-room and cellar. House is two and a half stories high with large and well finished attic, intended for private billiard room. This attic is lighted and ventilated by 18 large windows, which make the rooms below cool and comfortable during the hottest summer months. The two front rooms on lower floor are 16x22 feet, with 14-foot ceilings, and make elegant parlors. The dining room is immediately behind one of these parlors and is a lovely room, sixteen feet square, with beautiful bay window. The situation of this room makes it an ideal dining room, as it is not only very convenient to kitchen, but most accessible to every other room in the house. Opposite this dining room is a bed room of same dimensions, with large toilet room and closet attached; with four large windows and side porch it makes a most convenient and comfortable room. The kitchen, pantry and closets further in rear complete the lower floor. These rooms are separated by a hall twelve feet wide, running almost the entire length of the house. Near the center of this hall a broad and graceful stairway leads to upper floor, and just beyond this stairway an archway for portieres screens the front from the rear view. This stairway leads to a spacious hall on second floor, which separates rooms and apartments of same size as those on lower floor. A modern and elegantly furnished bath room and closet are also on this floor. An elevator carries the coal from the cellar to a convenient coal room on this floor, which makes your coal convenient at all times and avoids the labor and inconvenience of having same carried up stairway. The wood work throughout this house is of a rich walnut finish and massive in design and corresponds perfectly with the handsome appearance of the house. The servants apartments are of brick with metal roof, and have been recently put in first-class repair. A new stable and carriage house is also on the premises, and having been recently built, is modern in every particular. This residence was erected at a cost of about $20,000 and is unquestionably one of the finest houses in the south. Made of the finest material and designed by one of the best architects in Kentucky, it stands today as perfect as when built.

The double lot on which this house stands is 115 feet, 9 in. front, and 143 feet deep to private alley 15 feet wide in rear. Has a substantial iron fence in front, with beautiful maple trees shading pavement and yard the entire width of lot. A fine yard of blue grass, together with flowers and evergreens add to the beauty and comfort of the home. Situated as it is, on the shady side of the best residence street in the city and surrounded by elegant homes, it is not only desirable as a home, but offers splendid inducements as an investment.

This sale is made pursuant to will of Mrs. McNary.

MANY IMPROVEMENTS.

The City Expects Many More to Soon Begin If Ordinance Pass.

Just now a great many improvements are in progress in Paducah, and if the half dozen or more improvement ordinances now before the council for second passage are passed, many more will begin before the autumn arrives.

The new culvert from Broadway near Eleventh and Twelfth to Jefferson is nearing completion, and a large fill is being made near the Hammer place, to supersede a bridge that had been condemned.

City Engineer Wilson has just completed the plans for a new bridge with trestle foundation, near the county poor farm, and all the streets are in deplorable condition.

Many wooden culverts and cross-ings are having drain pipes neatly covered with gravel supplanting them, and there are various other improvements contemplated, one of which is the new wharf at the foot of Elizabeth street, and the improvement of Washington street to the river.

If the street ordinances are tonight passed by the council, it will add to the already long list of public improvements.

COURT ON A BOAT.

Justice Emory Will Hereafter Have a New Court Room.

Justice Charles Emory, who has been holding court in Second and Broad streets, and some times in the street and on the benches in the Market house, will spring a novelty tomorrow by holding his court on a shanty boat at the foot of Second street. Since the contractors over diggers have been holding their office outside their district, he had been compelled to change his office, which was not in his district. He has bought a shanty boat in Paducah, and today will have it moved to the foot of the street and hold his court there.
